

HOPKINSVILLE, KENTUCKY.
A live and growing city of 6,000 inhabitants, situated in a county of 3,000. The Louisville and Nashville has two lines of railroad in the county. The largest tobacco growing country in the world. Wheat, corn, hay, coal, livestock and fruits produced for export in large quantities. The city has four banks with an aggregate capital of $1,000,000. A planing mill and wagon factory, three carriage factories, lime factory, tobacco manufactory, two foundries, three brickyards, broom factory, steam laundry, ice factory, two large flouring mills in the city and several in the county. Splendid driving park and fine opera house. Five turnpikes centering in Hopkinsville. Building and Loan Association, Commercial club, a telephone exchange, numbers streets and houses and city lighted by gas. Accommodated streets and brick sidewalks all over the city. Eleven churches, two colleges, a high school and the finest system of public schools, white and colored, in the state. Water from Kentucky Limestone Aquifer with a population of 600, two miles east of the city. A 100,000 court house with town clock in the dome. A fine fire department and a company of state militia. Little River furnishes an adequate supply of water for all purposes. Heat estate and rents cheap. Fine opening for woolen mill, pork packing establishment, fruit cannery, tannery and many other enterprises. Climate mild and invigorating and exceedingly healthful.

Lockport, N. Y. was visited by a $250,000 fire Sunday.

The Banner says Caldwell county is for Jno. D. Shaw in the Appellate Clerkship race.

The official majority of the Democratic Governor-elect of Iowa is 6,573. He received more than 180,000 votes.

Emil Bey, who has just been rescued from the wilds of Africa, was perhaps fatally injured last week by falling from a window in Zanzibar.

The Kentuckian has not been able to find the author of the stock law lie. We would like to find him and hold him up before the community as a perjured object of public scorn.

Geo. H. Thobe, who achieved some notoriety by contesting the seat of Mr. Carlisle in the last Congress, has been appointed third sergeant-at-arms of the House. This is just about Thobe's size.

The American has thrown itself into the breach for the "Old Gang" ticket, but the editor will not assist in the circulation of the lie that the present police arrest only colored offenders. He has knowledge to the contrary.

About a year ago the young wife of Wm. Showers, a bride of three months, was found dead in her room from a pistol shot wound, at Elizabethtown. Her husband was indicted on circumstantial evidence and was last week tried and acquitted.

The "Old Gang" are calling their ticket "a low license ticket" to catch the whiskey men and point to men on their ticket who favor a $1,000 license when trying to get the prohibition vote. In fact they are doing anything and everything to get votes enough to get back into power.

A stock law was passed by a Council a few years ago, elected and controlled by the very gang who are now circulating the lie that the Citizens' Progressive ticket favors such a law. Some of the same men are on their ticket this year. They will remember the law and the public howl that forced them to repeal it.

The "Old Gang" crowd are scared out of their wits. Candidates of all kinds, past, present and prospective, and dozens of "workers" are busily engaged in the work of trying to put back in power the gang who were kicked out a year ago. Will they succeed? Not if the law-loving people of the city do their duty.

It is not a question of men. We have nothing to say about the men who are on the "Old Gang" ticket. Some of them are good, clever men and we like them. But Lord, what company they are in! They represent not themselves, but a gang whose restoration to power would be a calamity for Hopkinsville worse than the great fire of 1882.

It is reported that the "Old Gang" ticket if elected will proceed forthwith to "fire" the present efficient fire department and reorganize the company with green hands. This is because the young men composing the present company are not training with the gang this year. Citizens of Hopkinsville, do you want to entrust your affairs into such hands? We think not.

Coburn, of the Fulton Graphic, denies that he is going to be married and gives the following very good reasons:

"Someone has willfully and maliciously started the report that we are going to join the happy and 'in-vincible' army of married men, and will soon don the matrimonial garb. To shield the fair name of some innocent young lady, and to relieve the fears of some good mother, we will state that we have not yet sufficient cheek to burden our mother-in-law with the boarding of two."

The same old lie we have heretofore had occasion to nail, that the Citizens' Progressive ticket would pass a law preventing stock from running at large on the streets, is still being circulated by the supporters of the "Old Gang" ticket. It is being harped on among the more ignorant class of the colored voters of the city. It is enough to say that the lie is a base and wilful one, without the shadow of a foundation on fact.

JEFF. DAVIS DEAD.

DEMISE OF THE FORMER PRESIDENT OF THE CONFEDERACY.

The Funeral at New Orleans Tomorrow.

The illness of Jefferson Davis, mentioned of which had been made in the papers for several days, resulted fatally at 12:45 o'clock Friday morning, Dec. 6.

A little before 6 o'clock Thursday evening he was seized with a severe congestive chill, followed by a high fever. The attack was very sudden, and before the sick man had been appeared as well as he had been for several weeks. It was but a short while until the fever brought on unconsciousness, and in this condition he died at 12:45 o'clock.

Mrs. Davis, who watched over him with tender solicitude during his last moments, thought at one time that she detected a returning consciousness but he never rallied, and his life went out quietly, peacefully and without a struggle.

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

Jefferson Davis was born in that part of Christian county, Ky., which now forms Todd county, June 3, 1808. His father Samuel Davis, had served in the Georgia cavalry during the Revolution, and when Jefferson was an infant, removed with his family to a place near Woodville, Wilkinson county, Miss. Young Davis entered Transylvania College, Kentucky, but left in 1824, on his appointment by President Monroe to the United States Military Academy. On his graduation, in 1828, he was assigned to the First Infantry, and served on the frontier, taking part in the Black Hawk war in 1831-2. He was promoted to First Lieutenant of Dragoons on March 4, 1833, but after more service against the Indians, abruptly resigned on June 30, 1835, and having married, after a romantic elopement, the daughter of Zachary Taylor, then a Colonel in the army, settled near Vicksburg, Miss., and became a cotton planter. Here he pursued a life of study and retirement till 1843, when he entered politics in the midst of an exciting gubernatorial canvass. He was chosen an elector on the Polk and Dallas ticket in 1844, made a reputation as a popular speaker, and in 1845 was sent to Congress, taking his seat in December of that year. He at once took an active part in debate, speaking on the tariff, the Oregon question and military matters, especially with reference to the preparations for war with Mexico. On Feb. 6, 1846, in a speech on the Oregon question, he spoke of the "love of union in our hearts," and, speaking of the battles of the Revolution, said: "They form a monument to the common country."

In June 1846, he resigned his seat in the House to become Colonel of the First Mississippi Volunteer Rifles, which had unanimously elected him to that office. Having joined his regiment at New Orleans, he led it to re-enforce Gen. Taylor on the Rio Grande. At Monterey he charged on the Comancheros without bayonets, led his command through the streets nearly to the Grand Plaza through a storm of shot, and afterward served on the commission for arranging the surrender of the place. At Buena Vista his regiment was charged by a Mexican brigade of lancers, greatly its superior in numbers, in a last desperate effort to break the American line. Col. Davis formed his men in the shape of a letter V, open toward the enemy, and thus, by exposing his flanks, to a covering fire, utterly routed them, though he was unsupported. He was severely wounded, but remained in the saddle till the close of the fight, and was complimented for coolness and gallantry in the Commander-in-Chief's dispatch of March 6, 1847. His regiment was ordered home on the expiration of his term of enlistment, and on May 17, 1847, Col. Davis was appointed by President Polk a Brigadier General, but declined the commission on the ground that a military appointment by the Federal Executive was unconstitutional. He was appointed by the Governor of Mississippi to fill a vacancy in the United States Senate in August, 1847, and in January, 1848, the Legislature unanimously elected him Senator, and re-elected him in 1850 for a full term. He was made Chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs and here, as in the House, was active in the discussions on the various phases of the slavery question and the important work of the session, including the fugitive slave law, and the other compromise measures of 1850. Mr. Davis proposed the extension of the Missouri compromise line to the Pacific and continued a zealous advocate of State rights or "secession" candidate for Governor of his State in 1851, though by his personal popularity he reduced the Union majority from 7,500 to 999. He had resigned his seat in the Senate to take part in the canvass, and, after a year of retirement actively supported Franklin Pierce in the presidential contest of 1852. After the election of Gen. Pierce, Mr. Davis received the portfolio of war in his Cabinet, and administered it with great credit. Among other changes he proposed the use of camels in the service on the Western frontier, introduced an improved system of infantry tactics, iron gun carriages, rifled muskets and pistols, and the use of the Minie ball. Four regiments were added to the army, the defenses on the coast and frontier were strengthened and as a result of experiments, heavy guns were cast hollow and a larger grain of powder was adopted. While in the Senate, Mr. Davis had advocated the construction of a Pacific railway as a military necessity and a means of preserving the Pacific coast to the Union and he was now put in charge of the organization and equipment of the surveying parties sent out to examine the various routes proposed. He also had charge of the appropriation of the extension of the Capitol. Mr. Davis left the Cabinet at the close of Mr. Pierce's term in 1857, and in the same year entered the Senate again. He opposed the French spoliation bill, advocated the Southern route for the Pacific railroad, and opposed the doctrine of "popular sovereignty," often encountering Stephen A. Douglas in debate on this question. After the settlement of the Kansas controversy by the passage of the Kansas conference bill, in which he had taken a chief part, he wrote to the people of his State that it was "the triumph of all for which he contended."

Mr. Davis was the recognized Democratic leader in the Thirty-sixth Congress. He had made a tour of the Eastern States in 1858, making speeches at Boston, Portland, Maine, New York and other places. He had been frequently mentioned as a Democratic candidate for the presidency, and received many votes in the convention of 1860, though his friends announced that he did not desire the nomination. Before Congress met in the autumn of 1860, Mr. Davis was summoned to Washington by members of Mr. Buchanan's Cabinet to suggest some modifications of the forthcoming message to Congress. The suggestions were made and adopted. In the ensuing session Mr. Davis made on Dec. 10, 1860, a speech in which he carefully distinguished between independence, which the States have achieved at great cost, and the Union, which had cost "little time, little money and had cost no blood," taking his old State rights position. He was appointed on the Senate committee of thirteen to examine and report on the condition of the country, and, although at first excused at his own request, finally consented to serve, accepting the appointment in a speech in which he avowed his willingness to make any sacrifice to avert the impending struggle. The committee after remaining in session several days reported on Dec. 31, their inability to come to any satisfactory conclusion. On Jan. 10, 1861, Mr. Davis made another speech on the state of the country, asserting the right of secession, denying that of coercion, and urging the withdrawal of the garrison from Fort Sumter. Mississippi had seceded on January 9, and on January 24, having been officially informed of the fact, Mr. Davis withdrew from the Senate and went to his home, having taken leave of his associates in a speech in which he defended the cause of the South, and in closing begged pardon of all whom he had ever offended.

Before he reached home he had been appointed by the convention of Mississippi with the rank of Major General; but on February 18, 1861, he exchanged this office for that of President of the Confederate States, to which the Provisional Congress at Montgomery had elected him on February 9. Space will not permit here his subsequent career as President of the Confederacy, but it is current history and well known. His life, for the last few years, has not been a happy one. He has been harassed with debt, and while he had substantial friends who were ever ready to aid him his last days were not as happy as they might otherwise have been.

THE FUNERAL TO-MORROW.
NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8.—Many churches held memorial services in honor of Jefferson Davis today, principally the Protestant Episcopal, Catholic, Methodist and Presbyterian. Bishop Keener, of the Methodist Church, related anecdotes of the deceased, especially as to a visit to the annual sea shore camp-meeting. Bishop Galleher, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, who will be in charge of the funeral Wednesday, did not preach any sermon. Besides those already mentioned as assistants, he will be specially aided by Dr. Markham, Presbyterian; Father Hubert, Catholic; Drs. Baker and Martin, Protestant Episcopal. They were all Confederate Commissaries. Dr. Baker was sergeant of a company and Bishop Galleher himself carried a musket. It is the Bishop's intention to have the services to take place on the broad portico of the City Hall. Lafayette Square stretches out in front and many people could then witness the rites. A sprightly choir will sing the anthem, "Though I Walk Through the Valley of the Shadow of Death," by Sir Arthur Sullivan. At the tomb the same choir will chant "Rock of Ages." The body will be taken to the cemetery, a distance of three miles, on a caisson, and the vast procession will walk all the way. The parade will be of immense proportions. Even the benevolent societies are commencing to announce that they will turn out. The sombre drapery of mourning is spreading over the city. Today the shipping dipped its flags, the British steamships especially putting their flags at half mast.

The body now lying in state was photographed this morning by Charles H. Adams, who also took a view of the death chamber and the interior of the City Hall. The pictures will be used in a history of the deceased shortly to be published.

Ex-Senator Skiles Dead.
Ex-State Senator Henry H. Skiles, of Bowling Green, who has been an inmate of the Western Lunatic Asylum for eight months, died last Thursday night of apoplexy. He was taken quite ill a few hours previously and his nephew Hon. C. U. McElroy, of Bowling Green, was wired and arrived just before his death. He made the necessary arrangements for burial and left with the remains for Bowling Green Friday, where the body was interred. The Park City Times has this reference to his death: "Senator Skiles' death will be widely regretted by all who knew him. He was a man of great intellectual power, and was honored by his fellow-citizens with positions of honor and trust. He received his earlier education from the country schools in this county where he was born. He afterwards proceeded to Harvard University at Cambridge, Mass., from which institution he was graduated with honor. When he returned from Harvard he began the practice of his profession in this city in connection with Col. W. W. Western and was eminently successful."

In 1860 he purchased the Gazette, which will be remembered by our older citizens, and edited it with ability and brilliancy until the office was accidentally burned. When the Kansas emigration fever broke out he went to Kansas City and made investments which afterwards yielded him a handsome fortune. In 1863 he was elected County Attorney and served a term of four years, making a fearless and able prosecutor and a splendid officer. In 1870 he was elected a member of the House of Representatives from this county and at the end of his term was re-elected in 1870 he was elected to the State Senate from the 11th district and after serving a term of four years with distinction and honor declined a re-election because his private affairs demanded his attention.

On last Saturday morning the dead body of Joshua King, an old farmer living a mile and a half out of Clansy, was found in a pond of water by parties who were in search of him, as his mysterious disappearance from the premises had created excitement. Suspicion was immediately formed that he had been foully dealt with, and Coroner O'Brien, together with Magistrate D. Courney, held an inquest over the body, but the facts brought forth did not confirm the suspicion. Later on Saturday, rumors were circulated that evidence of a suspicious nature were found at his home, and at the request of 80 or 100 of King's relatives, a new examination was made. By "Squire D. Courney" but nothing definite was discovered to justify any other conclusion than the decreased came to his death at his own instigation.

CROFTON.
CROFTON, Dec. 8.—Two engines and three cars were wrecked here at 6:50 p. m. Friday. Freight train No. 75 was standing on the main track waiting for the extra north bound train to head in at the south end of the switch, but instead of running in on the side track they came down on the main track at the rate of thirty miles an hour, running into engine No. 75, south bound. The engineer, fireman and head brakeman on the north bound train jumped off about a hundred yards before they collided and the men on the south bound train all got off, so no one was in the least hurt. The wrecking car and a large crowd of men have been working two days clearing the track. No trains have been delayed, owing to the siding being clear.

No other remedy is so reliable, in case of sudden cold, or coughs, or for any and all derangements of the throat and lungs, as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. This wonderful medicine affords great relief in consumption, even in the advanced stages of that disease.

A Pretty American Countess.

I saw another American at Lucerne whom, without knowing, I hold in high regard. I met her with her husband and a sprightly-faced Sister of Charity looking at the pale face which surrounded the lady's face. I had observed the lady's aspect of as she sat with quiet attention in the soft twilight of the old church, listening to the grand organ as its music pealed among the gray arches. Her strong, rosy face, with clear-cut features, soft gray hair under her black hat, and a plain dress outlined against a great stone pillar, made a striking picture as she sat beside her husband, a straight, strong, by-knit, solidly German with gray hair and a stern face bronzed by exposure. They were the Count and Countess Waldersee. He is a great General and Von Moltke's successor as chief of staff of the ambitious young German Emperor, and she the best friend of the young Empress—Lucretia Letter.
